TO THE

Promoters of Literature.

THE managers of the Beula Seminary, impelled by motives of pure morality, having reſolved to diſpoſe of the following property by way of LOTTERY, in order to aſſiſt them in erecting a convenient building for the accommodation of one hundred ſtudents, and the neceſſary profeſſors in the different departments of ſcience—do offer for ſale three hundred and fifty lots in BEULA, each fifty-eight feet by one hundred and twenty-five, at twenty dollars per ticket, each ticket entitled to a lot to be determined by ballot; ten dollars to be paid on receipt of the ticket, and the remaining ten on the delivery of the deed. The ballot to take place before impartial men, as ſoon as the whole number of tickets are ſold.

The managers, anticipating the difficulty of obtaining caſh for the whole, have reſolved to receive an equivalent, for ſome of the lots, in ſelect books; philoſophical apparatus, or in produce and materials for building, delivered on the ſpot.

It may be obſerved, that the value of prizes in this lottery will be more than double the amount of all the tickets; for 350 lots, would at their average eſtimation, produce at leaſt 15,750 dollars; whilſt, according to the preſent propoſals, the ſum obtained for them will be only 7,000 dollars.

Tickets may be had during this winter, of Morgan J. Rhees, preſident of the board of managers, no. 177, ſouth Second-ſtreet, Philadelphia; who will receive propoſals and plans for the erection of the building. It is intended to be of brick or ſtone; its ſituation on the ſummit of a gradual riſing eminence, commanding an extenſive proſpect of the ſurrounding country; an obſervatory to be on its top.

Land and out lots in the vicinity of the Town may be had on moderate terms by applying as above. Mechanics and laborers, of good morals will meet with encouragement.

WILMINGTON, (N. C.) Jan. 17.

On the 9th inſtant. arrived in this port the ſchooner Adams, of Newbury-Port, Nicholas Pierce, Maſter, in 28 days from Cayenne, having on board Citizen Rouſtaneng, chief adminiſtrator of the Navy, and Citizen Paupe, as priſoners.

Capt. Pierce relates that he was captured on his paſſage from Newbury-Port to Surinam, by a French privateer, and carried into Cayenne, where his veſſel and cargo were condemned; that he afterwards purchaſed, the veſſel, and received thoſe two French Citizens on board as paſſengers, to be landed at Bartholomews; but apprehenſive of again becoming a prize to a French pirate, ſhould he touch at the Iſland, he concluded to conſult his own ſafety in the beſt manner he could, and to proceed ſtraight for this continent. He repreſents the conduct of the French to the Americans carried in Cayenne as very ſevere, and ſuch as could not be juſtified even if America was at open war with their nation; and ſtates that this Citizen Rouſtagneng had in his official capacity, been the inſtrument of condemning his veſſel and many others, and that the moſt frivolous pretexts were made uſe of to juſtify ſuch proceedings.

The relation of Citizen Rouſtagneng differs materially from that of Capt Pierce. He ſays that after condemnation of the ſchooner, he himſelf purchaſed her for 300 dollars, and agreed with the captain that he ſhould command her, and land him in St. Bartholomews, and on their arrival there, have the veſſel for two thirds ſaid purchaſe money; and that in conſequence thereof, he empowered capt. Pierce to take on board all the American priſoners in Cayenne, and provided the veſſel for the voyage; that after they had got to ſea, the captain took from him the bill of ſale of the veſſel, one hundred guineas in caſh, great part of his own wearing apparel, his gold watch, &c. and the chief of the wearing apparel of his fellow paſſenger; and inſtead of touching at St. Bartholomews accord ng to his engagement, and landing them there, brought them here as priſoners. He does not deny that he was the chief officer of the Admiralty Adminiſtration, but ſays his conduct was conforma ble to the orders of his government, and that he ſhould not be perſonally amenable in this country for it.

On theſe two accounts we ſhall make no comment, as probably they will be a matter of legal inveſtigation.

Theſe gentlemen have been ſo obliging as to give us the following information; that one month previous to their embarkation arrived two French frigates, l'Inſurgent and la Voluntaire, on board of which came paſſengers citizens Burnel, ſpecial agent of the Executive Directory, for the Department of Cayenne, and Gen. Deſfourneaux, likewiſe ſpecial agent for the Iſland of Guadaloupe; the former to replace citizen Jeannet, and the latter Victor Hugues.

Theſe veſſels brought the account of the decree of the Executive Directory, which enjoins all French armed veſſels to reſpect neutral bottoms. In conſequence of which, the Tribunal of Commerce that held for trial an American brig, acknowledged the property to be neutral, and did not pronounce the confiſcation thereof. It was therefore expected that the ſpecial agent who had no judicial authority to retain her, would order her to be releaſed.

The ſame gentlemen announce for certain that Gen. Deſfourneaux, agent for Guadaloupe, intended on his arrival at that Iſland, to diſpatch to the Executive at Philadelphia, a perſon properly authoriſed, to ſolicit an intercourſe and a renewal of trade between the United States and the French Windward Iſlands. He had already pitched, for that important miſſion, on citizen Cheneau, formerly employed in the legation under citizen Adet.

In regard to the local affairs of the Iſland of Cayenne, the proclamation lately iſſued, manifeſts the firm reſolution of citizen Burnel, for the maintenance of good order amongſt the black cultivators, he invites them to be aſſiduous to their labor under the penalty of Death—Lamort ou le Travail.

RICHMOND, January 25.

To WILLIAM B. GILES, Esq.

SIR,

IN company laſt evening, at the Swan Tavern, I heard a gentleman ſay, that you had declared it was your deſire to ſee a ſeparation of this ſtate, from the General Union!—I called upon that gentleman to know if he heard it from you himſelf: which he informed me was not the caſe; but told me where I might be better informed upon the ſubject.—I waited upon the gentleman this morning, who was at table with you, and he ſays that you did unequivocally declare it to be your wiſh and object to effect a diſſolution of the Fœderal compact and bring about ſuch a ſeparation.—The object of this, is therefore to know of you whether theſe aſſertions were made by you—and whether you were ſerious in ſuch a declaration?—becauſe, if you were, I think it time for every friend to his country's welfare, to prepare for ſuch an event.

I am,

Late Foreign Articles

VIA BALTIMORE.

By the ſhip Mount Vernon, captain Myrick, from London.

RASTADT, November 7.

The day before yeſterday the deputation of the empire determined upon their anſwer to the French note, of which the Auſtrian note forms the baſis, and indeed many of the expreſſions are the ſame, and yeſterday the Imperial plenipotentiary delivered it to the French legation. Its principal contents are as follows:

The deputation of the empire are unable to explain how the French plenipotentiaries in their note of the 28th October, in reply to that of the deputation of the 17th, have confined themſelves to a general refuſal, and not ſatisfied with that, have even embittered that refuſal with expreſſions and inſinuations which at the moment of approaching conciliation, muſt neceſſarily be as unexpected as in public diplomatic diſcuſſions between two powers treating for peace, and mutually reſpecting each other, they are unuſual. If the deputation of the empire have been unable to overleap difficulties which aroſe out of the nature of the caſe, at leaſt they have not endeavored to protract the buſineſs by the mode of diſcuſſion, but rather by means of diſcuſſion to eſtabliſh a fair baſis for deciſion, and as they have exerted themſelves in a particular manner to ſtate every thing in a clear point of view, and to avoid all duplicity, they could have wiſhed to know the paſſages in their notes, in which the French plenipotentiaries imagine that they perceive any thing equivocal. They direct their attention, and they inſiſt only upon thoſe propoſitions which they themſelves conſider right and juſt, &c. &c.

If, however, the French plenipotentiaries now begin to reproach the deputation of the empire, that they are not ſerious in the deſire of peace which they ever profeſs; it requires only to glance over the progreſs of the preceding negociations to form an accurate eſtimate of what the deputation have done to obtain peace; after which no man can believe that ſuch a charge could have been ſeriouſly advanced. [Here follows an enumeration of the ſacrifices made by the empire, omitted in the papers come to hand.]

Greater ſacrifices no nation which is deſirous of remaining free, independent, and ſupported by its own power, could make—to ſuch conceſſions and conditions no nation that was not actuated by the moſt lively deſire of peace, as a period to the ſufferings of mankind, could have conſented. Upon what can the reproach, that the deputation are averſe to peace, be founded? Can it be that they have to take upon them the debts of municipal bodies on the right bank of the Rhine—in fact more private debts, which even the French republic does not conſider as public debt, and of which, in future, it muſt be the principal creditor? Or is the charge founded upon their propoſal, that thoſe men who hitherto were German citizens ſhould not be treated as French emigrants; that thoſe men who have been reduced to miſery by the war, ſhould not be rendered ſtill more miſerable by a peace? The German empire will ſacredly obſerve the articles of peace that may be concluded. Conditions, however, which are eſſentially inconſiſtent with the baſis of peace originally laid down, becauſe they, in fact, extend the pretenſions of the French over all the right bank of the Rhine—Conditions which are incompatible with the national honor of Germany, which involve the ruin of the citizens of Germany; which bring its political exiſtence into danger—conditions which engage the German people to ſomething equivalent to a ſtanding tribute; which would conſequently paralyſe all its powers of production, annihilate all its national force—ſuch conditions which, in fact, it is impoſſible to fulfil, the deputation cannot, and muſt not accept. To them the intereſt of Germany has been entruſted, their duty preſcribes to them even in their moſt unequivocal deſire of peace not to deſcend to conditions of ſuch a nature. Theſe duties—thoſe of juſtice and integrity—it is which the deputation have expreſſed in the contents of their laſt note. The conditions which intereſt ſo many unfortunate and ruined individuals, concern no ceſſions of territory, no arrangements of boundary, no commercial advantages, but they concern the rights, the property, the happineſs, nay the life itſelf of German ſubjects. The national dignity has impoſed it as a law upon the deputation, to ſpeak. The deputation demand nothing but what, in every peace, in every ceſſion of territory, by the general law of nations, it has been uſual to ſtipulate.

The deputation are convinced that the ſentiments contained in their former note, as well as the obſervations in the preſent, they may ſubmit without anxiety to their cotemporaries and to poſterity. They ſtill however rely with firm confidence upon the juſtice and good intentions of the French government, that theſe obſervations in themſelves ſo well founded, will make a deep impreſſion on the minds of the French plenipotentiaries and that the latter, in the conviction that the deputation have done their utmoſt to effect a complete conciliation, will no longer refuſe to declare themſelves in a ſatisfactory and conciliatory manner upon the whole of the propoſals contained in the note of the 17th of October.

The ſecond anſwer of the deputation of the empire regards the fortreſs of Ehrenbreitſtein, the revictualing of which they demand in the moſt expreſs terms.

November 8.

Beſides the note of the deputation and the imperial commiſſioners reſpecting Ehrenbreitſtein, the Pruſſian legation have delivered in another. It is expreſſed in very ſtrong terms. The following are its principal contents:

The miniſter plenipotentiary of his Pruſſian majeſty can by no means approve the ſtatements in the French note of October 28, in answer to the note of the deputation of the empire; that the revictualing of Ehrenbreitstein did not belong to them but to the military department. This point is no more of a nature purely military than the demolition of that fortress, which, however, was treated of at Rastadt. The French ministers, as negociators for peace, could treat of every thing which concerns the state of possession, and the relations between the two contracting powers. The blockade of Ehrenbreitstein is directly repugnant to the armistice which was agreed upon. It might almost be considered as an act of hostility, and even special conventions oppose it still more expressly. This blockade too is quite superfluous, since the deputation of the empire have agreed to the demolition of that fortress from a love to peace. The French plenipotentiaries, too, must recollect the friendly, the amicable representations which they presented to his Prussian majesty on the subject, stating, that the French government had totally renounced all views upon this place. Were it to fall into other hands, the north of Germany would be more exposed, and an important difference would arise on its means of defence, and consequently the interests of the king would be directly affected. The army of neutrality would then be no longer adequate to its object, it would be necessary to increase it and to take other measures. In a word, the ministers of his Prussian majesty, expressly state their request that the matter should be represented to the French government, and that the blockade of the fortress be given up, and its revictualing permitted.

PARIS, November 11.

Letters from Brussels of the 9th instant, are filled with an account of dreadful engagements between the republican troops and the rebels; of the whole of the rich and beautiful commune of Bornheim, there are now only a few empty houses remaining.

November 14.

The Ottoman ambassador at Paris, has demanded passports in order to return to Constantinople, but he has not yet obtained them.

November 15.

They write from Milan, that an extraordinary courier had passed through that place on his route to Paris. He brought intelligence that Buonaparte writes word he has lost but 900 men in all his engagements with the Mamelukes, and has driven the army of the Beys to the frontiers of Abyssinia. Half his army are marching towards the Persian Gulph, while the other half proceeded to Suez, where they intended to embark.—Buonaparte found admiral Richery at Suez, with 7 French sail of the line, and 4 Spanish ships, bound from Manilla. He only now waits for the monsoons to embark at Suez.

HAGUE, November 15.

The insurrection in the Low Countries is stated to have assumed a most formidable appearance; the insurgents are appointed with flying and other artillery, and are commanded by officers formerly in the service of the Prince of Orange. They style themselves the Imperial Catholic army.

The department of Brussels, Dyle, Forest, Lys, Scheldt, and Nether, have been declared in a state of siege. This order, however is to be limitnd to the places where the tree of liberty has been cut down, and the tockfin founded; the villages of Capille and Wellebroke have been destroyed by the military in their combats with the peasantry; at the latter place the regulars were repulsed, but returning the following day with reinforcements, after committing great slaughter, obliged the insurgents to fly to the woods.

On the 17th inst. nineteen waggons, with wounded French soldiers, arrived at Breda; they have lost in the several rencounters upwards of two thousand men. The loss of the rebels is estimated at six thousand men.

The Batavian government regarded these movements with particular solicitude, and has formed a corps of national troops on the frontiers for its protection, and to repress a spirit of revolt prevalent throughout that republic, as well as the whole district of the Rhine.

The garrison of Thionville and Mentz have attacked a large body of insurgents collected in the neighbourhood of Arlon, killed 600, and made 1500 prisoners; and it appears that all those parts of the French dominions, from which accurate intelligence can be received, are in a state of the greatest possible ferment.

ITALY, November 4.

Letters from Smyrna state that the combined Russian and Turkish fleet, consisting of 50 sail, of different sizes, were cruizing at the beginning of October, off the island of Scio; likewise that Buonaparte had taken a position before Cairo with 25,000 men, and was threatened by an army of Turks and Moors, consisting of 300,000. On the contrary, the official Journal printed at Rome under the head "News of the army of Asia" contains the following article: "Letters from Cephalonia and Messina, concur in stating that General Buonapate, so far from having sustained any reverse, has gained a complete victory over Pacha Achment, near St. John d'Acre, and taken possession of this place, of Aleppo and the principal towns of Syria. Nothing can withstand his undaunted courage and the excellence of his plans*."

A gazette published at Rome, however, states that the captain of an English vessel arrived at Neapolis, had announced, that in his voyage from Alexandria, in the latitude of Cyprus, he had seen a French convoy of 25 sail and three frigates, in the course to Alexandria, where probably they have arrived, as when he left that place there were only two English frigates cruizing before it.

The late Neapolitan minister at war has been removed on account of misconduct.—At Naples many persons have been arrested on account of the revolutionary opinions.

* The Hamburg editor justly remarks that as this intelligence has no date, and is not official, it requires confirmation.

LONDON, November 13.

A letter from the head quarters of the army of Italy, dated October 22, states, "that the French army, consisting of 180,000 effective men, without including the Cisalpine Legions, is in full march.—This formidable army is divided into three columns. One of them, a very strong one, directs its march towards the Neapolitan states.

The Surveillant frigate, the only ship of the Brest squadron not accounted for before, is arrived at L'Orient.

According to the overland dispatches received from Mr. Tooke, at Aleppo, by the last Hamburg mail, it appears that General Buonaparte has established a camp about four miles from Cairo, where he is with his army. General Berthier has been sent on towards the confines of Syria, for the purpose of entrenching himself in a favorable position, to repel the projected attacks of the Porte and the Mamelukes, who are assembling a large force in that quarter. Nothing very material has recently happened; but the French are exposed to the constant attacks of the Arabs, who are sure to murder every man who incautiously strays only a little distance from the grand army.

November 22.

Letters were this morning received by the admiralty from lord Nelson.

This day at three o'clock the speaker of the house of Commons, attended by the members, went to St. James's to present their address of thanks to his majesty, for his most gracious speech from the throne.

By letters from Cologne it appears, that the insurgents in Brabant have begun to retaliate upon the French army by shooting all the republicans that fall into their hands. A council of war has been held at Aix la Chapelle by the French generals, &c. upon this subject; from which fact it appears that the insurrection extends towards the Rhine.

Accounts from the Hague, of the 6th, further say, that the insurrection in Brabant not being quelled, by way of precaution, the guards at Amsterdam had been doubled. The post however was once more free.

Another article from Amsterdam says, the insurgents are still in great force upon the canal of Brussels between that place and Antwerp. At Thysselt there are 3,000 of them divided into companies, where they have appointed a military commission. The French general Collaud is marching against them with 15,000 men. All the municipalities are declared permanent, and the bells taken from the steeples to prevent the sounding of an alarm.

Letters from Brussels of the date of November 5, say:

"The revolt is quelled at Diest, Louvain, Aerschot, and the environs of Hal and Engheim; but on the banks of the Scheldt, and in the country of Vaes, it still rages in all its horrors. Several bloody actions have taken place near St. Amand, and they have cannon and chiefs.—Those of Menin, Furnes, and Ypres wear black cockades, and bear the Austrian colors. On the canal of Antwerp they are also in force.

"General Moraud has put the city of Luxembourgh in a state of siege. Secret correspondence was kept up between the inhabitants and rebels; and the general in his letter to the commander of 25th military division, says the minds of the people in Luxembourgh are become extremely vicia ted since the revolt took place."

It is reported that letters have been received in Leadenhall street from the East India company's agent in Egypt, stating that a large body of Arabs had joined the army of Buonaparte, under pretence of friendship to his troops, on their way into Syria, when suddenly the Arabs turned upon the French, and drove them back to Cairo with great loss.

This statement is probable, from what is said of the leading characteristics of the Arabians by all travellers, that they have the art of covering their treachery with more appearance of sincerity than any nation upon the face of the earth.—It will be remembered, that in one of the French letters from Egypt, it is stated that a distinguished leader of the rebels, who had sworn by his "turban and his beard," to support with all his influence the cause of the French, was next day detected as the primum mobile of a conspiracy which had for its object the assassination of the very French party with whom he had entered into treaty.

STATE PAPER.

Convention between the imperial general and the Grison council of war.

Since his imperial and apostolic majesty has been pleased to repeat the most gracious assurances of his determination to support and protect the free estates of the Grison league, the council of war for the three cantons, here assembled, have resolved to accept his imperial majesty's proposals, to send a number of troops for the security and defence of our menaced country, our frontiers and defiles. It is therefore agreed that all the passes and defiles, shall, immediately and without delay, be put into the possession of such a number of imperial troops, as shall be deemed sufficient for the defence of the same, or the support of the troops of the country, in consideration of the danger and exigencies of existing circumstances.

The imperial generals Bellega de and Auffenberg have given the most solemn assurances, that the imperial troops shall not be burdensome in the least degree to the inhabitants; and that quarters shall be provided for them without any care or contribution on the part of the country.

Further, if circumstances should require a greater or lesser quantity of hay, forage, &c. the same being furnished by the estates shall be paid for at the current price of such articles.

The generals will also exert themselves to render the quartering of the troops as little burthensome as possible, convinced that the inhabitants will behave wth a friendship towards the troops, consistent with the consideration of their being the defenders of their liberty and their ancient constitution.

The liberty, independence, and ancient constitution of the Grison league, shall according to the convention, be defended and protected against attacks from all quarters.

The imperial troops are bound to observe the strictest discipline, and to defend the property of every individual of the country upon whom they may be quartered.

The above troops and officers shall in no wise interfere or concern themselves with the internal government of this free country, rights priviledges and immunities, free and unmolested.

The imperial troops shall be quartered at those places where the safety and preservation of the peace of the interior may most require such a disposition.

November 24.

We this day resume our extracts from the French papers, which came to our hands yesterday.

The intelligence from Naples, of the defeat of the pacha of Syria by Buonaparte, near St John d'Acre, was first brought by the French papers which arrived 9 days ago, in an article from Rome of the 24th ultimo. The authority on which it was stated at Rome, was that of letters from Cephalonia and Messina. This account does not appear to have been credited even at Paris, and the Propagateur makes the following observation on it.

"The authors of these letters, who make Buonaparte enter Aleppo on the 16th of September, appear to forget that the distance between Cairo and Aleppo is 100 myriameters, and that the last official dispatches from Buonaparte were dated at the former city on the 19th August. Even supposing that an army with so many difficulties to overcome, could march three myriameters per day, no less than 33 days would be necessary for the journey. Admitting, therefore, which is very improbable that the army set out on the 20th August, the day following the date of the last dispatches, and that they marched 33 days without stopping, he could not have reached Aleppo until the 22d September. But it was at least six days short of this time, that Buonaparte employed on his march, if we are to give credit to the Naples letters. The news appears to us to be premature. The letters may perhaps have mistaken the date, and Buonaparte may have entered Aleppo on the 1st of October, thought it is not to be believed that he did so on the 16th of September."

These observations are alone sufficient to discredit the account. An overland express from India has, we understand, brought intelligence from one of the company's agents that proves the falsehood of it by a more certain test than its improbability. A vessel carrying dispatches from Buonaparte, had been driven on shore by the Emerald frigate, but some of the crew had been picked up. From these information was collected, that the French army were in Egypt and Syria, for the head-quarters of Buonaparte were still at Grand Cairo, while Berthier who had advanced into Syria, was in a very desperate situation. Some private letters received by this overland express, even go so far as to assert that Berthier had met with a very considerable check in Syria, but we connot ascertain that much credit is due to this communication.

November 27.

Lord Nelson has now a pension equal to that of either lord St. Vincent or lord Duncan. The two latter have each 2000l. on the British and 1000l. on the Irish establishment. Lord Nelson had a pension of 1000l. per annum, on account of the loss of his arm, previous to the late grant of 2000l. which makes his income from the country amount in the whole to 3000l a year.—Should he therefore be also put on the Irish establishment, his pension will exceed that of either lord St. Vincent or lord Duncan, by 1000l. per anum.

Alcmene, off Demietta, September 28, 1798.

Yesterday at noon arrived the Hamburg mail, only then become due.

Private letters from Hamburg, dated the 20th, report, that a dangerous insurrection has broken out in South Prussia, to which point several strong columns of troops from Pomerania, &c. were proceeding by forced marches. This revolt is said to implicate some of the first families in the kingdom, and amongst others, prince Radziville, who lately married a Prussian princess, and who is stated to have been arrested at Berlin.

Twenty-eight thousand Bohemian troops are on their march from Bohemia towards the Rhine. The Austrian troops in Suabia and Franconia are generally in motion, and are engaged in fortifying Ulm and Wirtzburg.

Accounts from Frankfort, of the 13th, state, that all the French generals of the army of the Rhine, 17 in number, had assembled at Mentz, and there received their instructions for a new campaign. Jourdon commands in chief; Ferino has the right, and Bernadotte the left wing; St. Cyr the centre; Lefevre the vanguard; and Massene the rear. General Jourdon is expected to remove to Strasburgh.

November 27.

This morning Mr. Pitt sent a letter to the bank, stating, that he would be ready next week to treat for a loan. This notice was, as usual, communicated from the bank to the stock exchange, where it occasioned a depression of the funds. When this paper was put to press the three per cent consols were at 52 3-4.

The monied men have begun their preparations for the loan, which is expected to be 17 or 18,000,000. Three lists are forming, all by respectable parties, for the occasion.

They write from Turin, that orders had been given for the passage of 40,000 French, and 100,000 muskets, through Lombardy. From Basle we learn, that the citadel of Schaffouse is furnished with cannon, brought from the arsenal of that city, and that the artillery men are very actively employed. From Stutgard there are accounts, that through Immerstadt and Kempton, Imperial troops are constantly marching from the Tyrol to the neighborhood of Constance, with an immense quantity of artillery and ammunition.

WHEREAS,
BY an Act of Congreſs paſſed on the ſixteenth day of July in the year of our Lord one thouſand ſeven hundred and ninety eight, the Preſident of the United States is authorſied to borrow on behalf of the United States, from the Bank of the United States, or from any other body or bodies politic or corporate, or from any perſon or perſons, and upon ſuch terms and conditions as he ſhall judge moſt advantageous for the United States, a ſum not exceeding five millions of dollars, ſo however, that no contract or engagement be made which ſhall preclude the United States from reimburſing any ſum or ſums borrowed at any time after the expiration of fifteen years from the date of ſuch loan. And whereas, it is declared by the ſaid Act, that ſo much as may be neceſſary of the ſurplus of the duties on Imports and Tonnage beyond the permanent appropriations heretofore charged upon them by law, ſhall be pledged and appropriated for paying the intereſt, and alſo for paying and diſcharging the principal ſum or ſums of all the monies which may be borrowed, according to the term or terms which may be fixed, purſuant to the authority aforeſaid—And whereas by the ſaid Act, the faith of the United States is pledged to eſtabliſh ſufficient permanent Revenues for making up any deficiency that may hereafter appear in the proviſions before-mentioned for paying the intereſt and principal ſums, or either of them, of any monies which may be borrowed purſuant to the ſaid Act. And whereas the Preſident of the United States did by an Act or Commiſſion under his hand dated the ninth day of January in the year one thouſand ſeven hundred and ninety nine, authoriſe and empower, the Secretary of the Treaſury, to borrow on behalf of the United States, any ſum not exceeding in the whole, five millions of dollars and to make ſuch contract or contracts as ſhould be neceſſary, and for the intereſt of the United States; in purſuance of the Act of Congreſs above recited.
Now therefore, the underſigned, Secretary of the Treaſury, in purſuance of the Act of Congreſs, and the authority from the Preſident of the United States, above mentioned, doth hereby on behalf of the United States of America, contract and engage in manner following, to wit.
1ſt. A book for receiving ſubſcriptions to a Loan of five millions of dollars for the uſe of the United States ſhall be opened in the city of Philadelphia, at the Bank of the United States on Thurſday the twenty eighth day of February enſuing, which book ſhall continue open for the purpoſe of receiving ſubſcriptions, until the whole of the ſaid five millions of dollars ſhall be ſubſcribed. If more than five millions of dollars ſhall be ſubſcribed on the firſt day of opening the ſaid loan, the ſurplus ſhall be deducted in proportion to the ſums ſubſcribed by individuals exceeding four thouſand dollars.
2d. For every hundred dollars which may be ſubſcribed there ſhall be forthwith depoſited and paid the ſum of twelve dollars and fifty cents, and like payments of twelve dollars and fifty cents, ſhall be made within the firſt ten days of the months of April, May, June, July, Auguſt September and October enſuing. The Secretary of the Treaſury however reſerves the right of reducing the number of inſtallments by ſpecial agreements, with the individuals who may become ſubſcribers.
3d. On the failure of payment of any inſtallment of the ſums ſubſcribed according to the tenor of the ſecond article, the next preceeding inſtallment of twelve dollars and fifty cents, which ſhall have been paid, for every hundred dollars ſubſcribed ſhall be forfeited to the United States.
4th, The ſums ſubſcribed ſhall and may be paid to the credit of the United States, at the Bank of the United States, or at the offices of diſcount and depoſit of the ſaid Bank at Boſton, New-York, Baltimore, or Charleſton, or at either of the Banks of Salem, in Maſſachuſetts, Newport and Providence in Rhode-Iſland, Hartford in Connecticut, Albany in New-York, or Alexandria in Virginia, for which payments, the receipts of the Caſhiers of the Offices of Diſcount and Depoſit and of the Banks aforeſaid ſhall be received at the Bank of the United States as equivalent to money; but no payment of a ſubſequent inſtallment ſhall be received at any other place than that where the firſt inſtallment was paid, except at the Bank of the United States; in caſe any depoſits ſhall be made at the offices of Diſcount or Depoſit, or at either of the Banks aforeſaid, which ſhall not be applied to the payment of the firſt inſtallment of ſubſcriptions to the Loan aforeſaid, the ſaid depoſits ſhall be forthwith refunded by directions from the Treaſury.
5th. For the ſums or number of ſhares of one hundred dollars, which may be ſubſcribed, certificates ſhall be given by the Caſhier of the Bank of the United States, which ſhall be aſſignable by indorſement, and delivery of the parties in whoſe favour the ſaid certificates may be iſſued, until the completion of the payments required by the tenor of the ſecond article preceeding.
6th. The ſums ſubſcribed and paid in purſuance of the tenor of the ſecond article preceeding, ſhall after the ſaid payments have been compleated, conſtitute a funded capital ſtock diviſible into ſhares of one hundred dollars each, which capital ſtock ſhall bear intereſt at the rate of eight per centum per annum from the times fixed for the payment of the reſpective inſtallments payable quarter yearly at the Treaſury of the United States, or at the Loan Offices where the ſame may ſtand credited, until the laſt day of December, in the year one thouſand eight hundred and eight.
7th. After the laſt day of December in the ſaid year one thouſand eight hundred and eight, and after reaſonable notice to the creditors, which ſhall be given by an advertiſement in ſome public newſpaper, printed at the ſeat of the government of the United States, the ſaid capital ſtock ſhall be redeemable at the pleaſure of the United States by the reimburſement of the whole ſum or ſums borrowed, and which may conſtitute the ſaid capital ſtock either at the treaſury of the United States or at the loan offices where the ſame may ſtand credited.
8th. The credits for the ſaid capital ſtock ſhall and may be ſeparately certified in ſums either for one hundred, four hundred, one thouſand, four thouſand or ten thouſand dollars, and the credits ſo certified ſhall be transferable by the creditors, or their attornies, at the Treaſury and Loan Offices reſpectively, in purſuance of the rules which have been, or which may be eſtabliſhed relative to the tranſfer of the funded ſtock of the United States.
9th. A ſufficient ſum of the ſurplus of the duties on Imports and Tonnage beyond the permanent appropriations heretofore charged upon them by law, together with the faith of the United States are hereby pledged for the fulfillment of this contract, in purſuance of, and according to the terms and conditions of the act of Congreſs herein before recited.
